

ONSOUND

ALAN CORR

Rock / Pop

ROESY

COLOUR ME COLOURFUL

N4

On his third studio album, the cherubic bard from Birr has clearly been imbibing the universal truth serum. Excuse the sad sap title, and Roesy's glass half-full meditations tug at the heart and leave a warm glow in the brain, like any number of gentle early 70s songwriters. Accompanied by elfin-voiced Autamata vocalist, Carol Keogh, on several tracks, Colour Me is more of a band project and the likes of Propellor (sic), Endless Day, and the incantatory, Don't Be Afraid, up Roesy's game considerably. The killer standout is One of The Same, a radio friendly romp which, given the right push, could prove a breakthrough. ★★★

Download: Propellor, One of The Same